Resolution Writing Guide: Special Session on Terrorism

State Sovereignty and Intervention

This guide gives you the opening words that start every clause of a resolution, and it shows one example from this committee's sample resolution. A resolution is the final product of the committee, so clear clauses help your ideas get votes. Read the example first, then practise writing your own clauses in the boxes at the end.

THE TWO KINDS OF CLAUSES

Preambulatory clauses come first. They say why the committee is acting. Each one starts with an italic opening phrase and ends with a comma.

Operative clauses come second. They say what the committee will do. Each one is numbered, starts with a verb, and ends with a semicolon. The last operative clause ends with a period.

WHAT THIS COMMITTEE CAN DO

This special session makes recommendations. It can ask the Security Council to act, but it cannot order countries, so your operative clauses should affirm, recommend, urge and request.

ONE WORKED EXAMPLE

This is the opening line of the resolution: The Special Session on Terrorism, Every clause after it continues that sentence.

> Recalling the Declaration on Friendly Relations (A/RES/2625(XXV), 1970), which confirms the rule of non-intervention and the duty of every state not to organise or allow terrorist acts against other states from its territory,

The starter Recalling tells the room why the committee cares. The rest of the clause names the fact, rule or earlier decision, and the comma at the end shows that more clauses follow.

> 1. Affirms that foreign forces may act against terrorist groups on the territory of another state only with the consent of that state, with the authorisation of the Security Council under Chapter VII, or in self-defence under Article 51, and calls upon all states to respect these limits;

The verb Affirms tells the room what the committee will do. The words after it say who acts and what they should do, and the semicolon shows that another operative clause comes next.

YOUR TURN

Write one clause of each kind for your own country. Use a starter from the table, and make sure your operative clause asks for something this committee is allowed to do.

Preambulatory clause (starter, then the reason, then a comma):

_____ _____

_____,

Operative clause (number, verb, then the action, then a semicolon):

1. _____ _____

_____;

The example clauses come from the HMDC sample draft resolution for this committee, which lists its sources in full. Resolutions are written live in committee with your bloc, so use this guide to practise, not to copy.
