- Please arrive prepared with enough energy to give a speech if called upon to do so.
- Homework will be limited so as not to interfere with your existing workload.
- We are speaking and debating every session - students are encouraged to bring fun topics to class.
IMPORTANT: If someone is speaking everyone is listening; it's about showing respect.

IMPORTANT: Students must come prepared to speak and debate. There will be reading and writing assignments due at the start of each meeting, except for the first one. These assignments are needed to join in the activities. Only parents can excuse a student from homework (must inform teachers in advance!).

Key Concept of the Course

This course focuses on developing skills in critical thinking, confident speaking, and respectful collaboration. We believe in our ability to express ourselves clearly and confidently. We aim to be problem-solvers who advocate for our beliefs and show respect for others, even when they disagree. Understanding how government works and learning to negotiate and collaborate are essential for success and leadership. Respect for ourselves and others is fundamental in every discussion and decision we make.

September 7, 2024 to December 14, 2024 (14 Sessions)

General Plan for the Course

This course is about learning by doing. Most learning will come from participating in Model Congress activities and using research. Much of the research will be provided, but extra reading can help. Debates and negotiations can be intense, so it's important to show respect and kindness, especially to those nervous about public speaking. We will engage in Model Congress activities in every session, starting with simple topics. Research topics will be given in advance. The first month will focus on learning Model Congress skills, then we will use those skills in full simulations. By the end of the course, we will be ready to participate in Model Congress sessions confidently.

Technology and Communication

Let's help make the course enjoyable for everyone. Show up prepared and keep the camera on at all times (unless the teacher gives special permission). Check that the camera, microphone, and speakers are working properly before each class. Do not wait until the last moment to do homework assignments. Notify the teacher right away if there are trouble accessing learning materials or if emails are not received.
